HILTON'S POINT- 1623

The first settlement at Dover was made here at the southernmost point of Dover Neck and was called Hilton's Point after Edward and William Hilton. They were fishmongers from London who, in 1623, established their fishing industry at this scenic site.

Tolend landfill topic of City Council workshop

In meeting to follow, Council to hold public hearings on Planning Board ordinance change, InvestNH grant

The City Council will hold a workshop on the former municipal landfill on Tolend Road, followed by its first regular meeting of 2023, on Wednesday, Jan. 11.

The former landfill is a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's National Priority List site, also known as a Superfund site. In 2022, the EPA completed its required five-year review of site cleanup at the landfill; the report is www.epa.gov/superfund/dover. The workshop will review proposed cleanup operations at the site and the EPA's recent five-year review. The City of Dover is one of eight responsible parties for the landfill cleanup, which operated from 1960 to 1980. Tuesday, Thursday, The Council will hold two public hearings at the meeting Saturday: following the workshop. 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 One is on a proposed ordinance change that would clarify the p.m. Planning Board can designate "its site review powers and duties" for "minor site plans to a committee of technically qualified administrators chosen by the Planning Board" from Community Services, Planning and other city departments, such as members on the Planning Technical Review Committee. The other public hearing is the acceptance of a $250,000 InvestNH Municipal Planning and Zoning grant allocated to municipalities to analyze and update their land use regulations to help increase housing development opportunities. Other items on the agenda include authorizing: Final payment and settlement with contractor George R. Cairns & Sons, Inc., of Windham, for its work on installing a new culvert underneath the train tracks on Broadway. which was completed in 2021; the contractor filed a claim with the city in 2022 seeking additional compensation related to various events on the project, including the project delay after a significant amount of ledge was discovered in 2019 during the project; A $33,500 contract with Kessler Consulting, Inc., of Tampa, Florida, to conduct a feasibility study on the city operating curbside trash and recycling pickup; currently, this operation is contracted out; Adding $46,000 to the contract with Horsley Witten Group, Inc., of Sandwich, Massachusetts, which has designed the public improvements aspects of the waterfront development. The additional scope of work is for geotechnical engineering, structural foundation design, and design coordination and meetings; An $86,100 contract with CJ Architects of Portsmouth for architectural design services as it relates to a public waterfront park building in the waterfront development area on River Street.

Click here for current and previous City Council agendas. The workshop begins at 6 p.m., and the meeting begins at 7 p.m.; both will be held in City Hall's Council Chambers.

School Board may adopt FY2024 budget at its Jan. 9 meeting

The School Board will meet Monday, Jan. 9, for its first regular meeting of the year, where the board may adopt its fiscal year 2024 operating budget.

The School Board met for its fourth budget workshop on Jan. 4, where members reviewed FY2024 staffing recommendations. The board also discussed what needs to be done to come to a final budget number. Videos of all budget-related meetings and workshops and accompanying documents are available on the FY2024 Budget Revealed page.

If the School Board does not adopt a budget, a special meeting will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 17, as a fallback budget adoption date.

New strategic plan aims to improve city's response to mental health crisis

The Dover Mental Health Alliance Task Force recently released its strategic plan to guide how the City of Dover can continue improving how it responds to mental health crises.

In recent years, Dover has experienced a significant rise in demand for mental health crisis services. In response, the City of Dover and the Dover Mental Health Alliance (DMHA) have taken several measures to help respond to the community's mental health needs. One such response was forming an independent subcommittee to review how the city responds to mental health crises, identify barriers to services, and how the city can improve its response, all of which are included in the strategic plan.

Click here to read the plan.

The subcommittee comprises community stakeholders, including leaders of Dover's Police, Fire and School departments, Wentworth-Douglass and Portsmouth Regional hospitals, Community Partners, Dover Mental Health Alliance, and the Center for Ethics in Society at Saint Anselm College, which helped guide the committee's process.

Through their work, the subcommittee identified five significant barriers to improved mental health crisis services in Dover: continued social stigma and prejudice surrounding mental illness, a lack of tracking and data in critical areas, inadequate communication and coordination between and among mental health care providers and social service agencies, inadequate staffing and support in organizations providing support services, and the absence of a dedicated facility providing round-the-clock mental health crisis services.

The subcommittee's recommendations for overcoming these barriers include six strategic objectives and more than 100 specific initiatives developed in consultation with municipal leadership for implementation by individual city departments. The six objectives are as follows:

- Expand education for the Dover community about the importance of mental health, the prevalence of mental illness, and the availability of mental health resources to reduce stigma and promote efforts for treatment and recovery;
- Expand mental health support training for city leadership and staff to improve mental health crisis care quality;
- Facilitate communication between mental health service partners and social service agencies for better understanding of agency limitations, coordination of care, referrals, and follow-up;
- Conduct better tracking of mental health-related statistics to better adapt to staff and community mental health needs;
- Provide added support for mental healthcare related positions and mental health support for City-funded staff;
- Establish better facilities for mental health crisis care.

"The committee found that The City of Dover serves as an excellent model for New Hampshire municipalities for how to respond to the mental health needs of a community," said Police Chief William Breault, a committee member. "This plan is a guide to continue Dover's excellent track record of success in the area of mental health."

Members of the subcommittee, including Breault, highlighted the report at the City Council's

Nov. 30, 2022 workshop, which can be viewed here. At the workshop, the police chief also introduced the department's social worker Kaitlin Jones, who has played a critical role in helping to connect people in need with available services, such as mental health, substance misuse, and housing services.

Breault and Jones were also interviewed on the Dover Download podcast released on Dec. 20, "How the City of Dover is Responding to Mental Health Needs."

Workers remove granite curbing on the Chestnut Street bridge Thursday.

Chestnut Street bridge work underway

Contractors began working on the Chestnut Street bridge this week after it was closed to all traffic on Jan. 3; the closure will remain in effect through mid-May.

Work this week has been focusing on removing pavement and granite curb to get to the concrete deck allowing a clearer picture of all repair locations.

Minor adjustments to detour signage – alternative detour available

After observing how motorists responded to the detour, minor adjustments were made to the contractor's traffic plan. The adjustments include covering several pedestrian/bicycle detour signs that had confused some motorists and relocating other closure and detour-related signs to be more readily viewable for drivers.

Although unmarked by signs as it is a more circuitous route, an alternative detour for motorists around the bridge closure utilizes Washington and Fourth streets.

Chestnut Street remains open for local traffic to businesses and residences on both ends of the bridge, including the Dover Transportation Center. Drivers should note that there are no detour options south of Third Street and north of Washington Street.

City officials thank motorists for their patience through the bridge rehabilitation. They recognize that the complete bridge closure significantly increases congestion on other roads, especially through downtown, and the detour can be confusing for some drivers.

The preferred traffic control plan for the project was to maintain traffic flow on the bridge. The city originally put the project out to bid with this traffic plan; however, one bid was received, substantially more than the city's budgeted amount. In efforts to reduce costs, engineers reviewed a full closure option. Full closure allows the contractor complete access to the bridge without added costs of controlling and shifting traffic throughout the project. Engineers then reviewed the full closure option with the Transportation Advisory Commission to reduce costs, which unanimously endorsed the plan, understanding bridge rehabilitation was critical to its long-term use.

The revised bid was issued in November. Last month, the City Council awarded the contract to New England Infrastructures, LLC. for $2,100,000, which was about $270,000 less than the previous bid that maintained traffic.

New Dover400 book compiles, expands popular 'Heritage Walks'

Dover400, the committee organizing Dover's 400th Anniversary celebrations, recently announced the publication of a new book, "Dover Heritage Walks: A Compendium of Past Walks and Reveals". This 175-page volume, which covers over 250 Dover historical properties and sites, relates the history of hundreds of buildings, people, churches, and businesses in the Garrison City.

The idea for the book arose from an existing series of 29 "Heritage Walk" brochures which were produced annually from 1979 to 2007. In each of those years, a different Dover neighborhood was chosen and significant research into its history was conducted. Volunteers then led walking tours of that neighborhood. But with such valuable information scattered among so many separate pamphlets, it was difficult to navigate the history.

With the publication of this new compilation volume, Dover history comes alive. The original brochure information has been edited and updated, and new color photos now illustrate each property. Designed with a spiral binding, the book can easily be carried on an exploratory walk, or read comfortably in an armchair. The book includes a table of contents, organized by street address, and an index with surnames and/or business names. The new volume sells for $30 and is available at the Dover Chamber of Commerce, the City Clerk's Office at Dover City Hall, and at the Dover Public Library. All proceeds will help support the Dover400 Celebration events from June 24 to July 4, 2023.

Dover400 is also conducting two fundraising campaigns, "$400 for 400", an effort to solicit 400 donors at $400, and also "The 1623 Society" with membership available for a donation of $1623. Donations may be sent to Dover400, 24 Chestnut St., Dover, NH 03820.

Jan. 10, 1656 — It was agreed that there shall be no more grants of lands made either to any of the present inhabitants or to any others until all the grants that are already laid out and bounded, and likewise that commonage be laid out to all inhabitants. It was also agreed that no further grants of land shall be made to any except by the consent of every inhabitant, with the power to issue grants being made by the selectmen.

Jan. 10, 1787 — Died, John Wentworth, Jr., the first lawyer in Dover. He was born July 14, 1745, graduated at Harvard College 1768, was a member of the House of Representatives and of the Committee of Safety, and a member of the Continental Congress in 1778-1780.

Jan. 7, 1845 — The Hon. John P. Hale's letter to his constituents against the annexation of Texas is published this day. Hale refused to obey a resolution of the state legislature directing him and the New Hampshire delegation in Congress to support the annexation of Texas. Hale argued the measure was only presented to promote slavery. The Democratic State convention was quickly reassembled and Hale's nomination was withdrawn.

Jan. 7, 1881 — One of the most terrible fires in the history of Dover occurred this day when a fire at the Poor House at the Strafford County Farm killed 13 people. The almshouse caught fire due to an overheated furnace and burned to the ground.

Jan. 12, 1998 — The School Board voted to make kindergarten a completely public program beginning in September 1998, reversing a decision of the previous board that would have implemented an alternative kindergarten program that was a combination of public and private education. The board's reversal of that plan allowed the SAU to initiate the construction of kindergarten classrooms at Horne Street (now Frances G. Hopkins Elementary School) and Garrison Elementary schools. Two-thirds of the construction costs of $500,000 would be defrayed by state construction aid, kindergarten aid, and foundation aid. New Hampshire made public kindergarten mandatory in 2009, the last state in the nation to require that all public school districts offer kindergarten.

Dover real estate agent donates to SEED for third consecutive year

Seacoast Endowment for Education in Dover ("SEED"), a nonprofit organization dedicated to lifting academic excellence in Dover schools, is pleased to announce it has received a $4,000 donation from Mindy Marcouillier, a real estate agent with Great Island Realty.

This is the third straight year Marcoullier has committed to donating $150 per house sold.

SEED just completed its fall funding period where it donated more than $25,000 for tools, professional development, and curriculum not otherwise available through traditional school budgets.

Some of the approved learning proposals for the fall cycle include the Zones of Regulation curriculum for elementary students to learn strategies to be better listeners and learners; Green Bronx Machine Curriculum and Tower Garden, an immersive whole-school curriculum that aligns the art and science of growing vegetables; Whiteboard Collaborative Table Sets, for middle school students to freely brainstorm, take notes or collaborate on ideas; and 21st Century Broadcasting Equipment for high school students to create and edit regular podcasts for the student body.

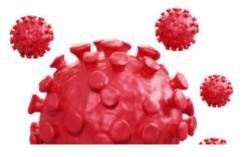

"This kind of generosity is pinnacle to an organization that depends on philanthropic giving from businesses and individuals," said Toby Arkwell, President, SEED Board of Directors. "We have so much more work to do to achieve academic excellence in Dover public schools."

SEED has backing from businesses and residents alike who believe in achieving the highest level of educational opportunity for Dover students to make the schools even better and the city a more appealing place to move a family.
