COAST seeks input on future of public transit system

The Cooperative Alliance for Seacoast Transportation (COAST) is excited to announce that over the next 22 months it will be taking a comprehensive look at its entire public transit system to potentially discover new opportunities to better serve the region as it is today and into the foreseeable future.

"There has been tremendous change across COAST's service area in the past 10-plus years," said Rad Nichols, COAST Executive Director. "COAST has also undergone incredible change, effectively doubling in size since 2009. COAST is at a point in its life cycle when a comprehensive, deep dive of how we provide services, and a discussion of whether those current services best meet the needs of the region, should be undertaken."

Key to the process, stakeholders (including riders, elected officials, the business community and community service organizations), are all being strongly encouraged to 'join the conversation' and take an active role in helping COAST determine how to best meet the changing needs of their current and future customers.

COAST will be offering multiple opportunities for public conversation and input through public forums, meetings, and hearings, as well as through in-person and online surveys. The first round of public forums are being scheduled through the month of October and will be held across COAST's service area.

The work of the Comprehensive Operations Analysis (COA) will be a repetitive process occurring over the course of the next 22 months, including extensive data collection, soliciting of public input, analyzing data patterns, forming new concepts for improved service, analyzing those concepts, and repeating this cycle until COAST identifies an improved network. The organization intends to launch any revised or new services resulting from the COA by July 2020.

A landing page for the project can be found at www.coastbus.org/OurFuture. Visitors to the online landing page will be able to read a project overview, review the project timeline and public event calendar, keep up to date on project happenings and materials, as well as sign-up for notices and provide public comment and input through available surveys and forms.

Nichols added, "Throughout this process, we are committed to achieving our organization's stated goals of actively engaging our stakeholders in collaborative efforts to be responsive to the region's changing needs, promoting fiscal stewardship of public transportation, and conducting ourselves with fiscal integrity and transparency that respects the taxpayers and municipalities that we serve."

The Cooperative Alliance for Seacoast Transportation (COAST) has provided public transit service to the Seacoast New Hampshire region since 1982. COAST is a public, non-profit transit system that relies primarily on federal and local government support to operate. COAST is governed by a board of directors representing the communities served, two regional planning commissions, and many local and state agencies.

National test of emergency alert systems scheduled for Oct. 3

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), in coordination with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), will conduct a nationwide test of the Emergency Alert System (EAS) and Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) on Oct. 3, 2018. The WEA portion of the test commences at 2:18 p.m., and the EAS portion follows at 2:20 p.m. The test will assess the operational readiness of the infrastructure for distribution of a national message and determine whether improvements are needed.

The test was originally planned for Sept. 20, 2018 but was postponed until Oct. 3 due to ongoing response efforts to Hurricane Florence.

The WEA test message will be sent to cell phones that are connected to wireless providers participating in WEA. This is the fourth EAS nationwide test and the first national WEA test. Previous EAS national tests were conducted in November 2011, September 2016, and September 2017 in collaboration with the FCC, broadcasters, and emergency management officials in recognition of FEMA's National Preparedness Month.

The EAS is a national public warning system that provides the President with the communications capability to address the nation during a national emergency. The test is made available to EAS participants (i.e., radio and television broadcasters, cable systems, satellite radio and television providers, and wireline video providers) and is scheduled to last approximately one minute. The test message will be similar to regular monthly EAS test messages with which the public is familiar. The EAS message will include a reference to the WEA test:

"THIS IS A TEST of the National Emergency Alert System. This system was developed by broadcast and cable operators in voluntary cooperation with the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the Federal Communications Commission, and local authorities to keep you informed in the event of an emergency. If this had been an actual emergency an official message would have followed the tone alert you heard at the start of this message. A similar wireless emergency alert test message has been sent to all cell phones nationwide. Some cell phones will receive the message; others will not. No action is required."

Cell towers will broadcast the WEA test for approximately 30 minutes beginning at 2:18 p.m. During this time, WEA compatible cell phones that are switched on, within range of an active cell tower, and whose wireless provider participates in WEA should be capable of receiving the test message. Some cell phones will not receive the test message, and cell phones should only receive the message once. The WEA test message will have a header that reads "Presidential Alert" and text that says:

"THIS IS A TEST of the National Wireless Emergency Alert System. No action is needed."

The WEA system is used to warn the public about dangerous weather, missing children, and other critical situations through alerts on cell phones. The national test will use the same special tone and vibration as with all WEA messages (i.e. Tornado Warning, AMBER Alert). Users cannot opt out of receiving the WEA test.

For more information, visit www.fema.gov/emergency-alert-test.

Harper Publishing best-selling author to speak at the Library

The Dover Public Library is pleased to welcome Linnea Hartsuyker to the library to speak to the public on Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 6:30 p.m.

Hartsuyker is the best-selling author of "The Half-Drowned King" and, most recently, of the second in the planned trilogy series, "The Sea Queen." The third and final book "The Golden Wolf" will be released in 2019. These fantasy novels are based on Icelandic Sagas and set in Viking-Age Norway. The story focuses on Ragnvald Eysteinnsson and his sister Svanhild, who struggle to regain their rightful place on the throne. These books take inspiration from the true story of Ragnvald of Maer. Goodreads describes the series as "An exhilarating Viking saga filled with the rich history, romantic adventure and political intrigue that have made Diana Gabaldon's Outlander, George R. R. Martin's Game of Thrones, as well as Phillippa Gregory's historical fiction and Neil Gaiman's Norse Mythology popular bestsellers."

Hartsuyker is a new resident of Dover and is pleased to be sharing her talents with our community. There will be copies of her books provided by RiverRun Books for sale at the event and Linnea will be happy to sign copies after her talk.

Linnea Hartsuyker

Linnea is a full-time writer of historical fiction with an MFA in Creative Writing from NYU and a BS in Material Science and Engineering from Cornell University. She is also an avid knitter, Crossfitter, traveler, and cook, and a reader of all genres of fiction and nonfiction.

The program is free and open to the public.
